Amazon HQ2 Update

Pittsburgh has made the list of 20 metro areas still in the running for the new Amazon headquarters. In fact, Pennsylvania is one of only two states to have more than one contender (Philadelphia is still competing, and Texas has two metro areas still on the list).

The list of cities includes: Atlanta, Austin, Boston, Chicago, Columbus, Dallas, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Miami, Nashville, Newark, New York City, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Raleigh, Toronto and Washington, D.C. Also still competing are Montgomery County, Maryland and Northern Virginia.

The 20 finalists have now moved on to what Amazon calls the "next phase of the process," as the retail giant works to select a winner from the 238 original proposals it received in the fall.

What could we expect if our city is chosen for the new HQ2? Amazon has promised to bring 50,000 new jobs to the winning city as well as $5 billion in investment over 17 years.

The final selection is expected to be made sometime before the end of the 2018.

Product Spotlight: SoundBreak® XP®

National Gypsum®

Gold Bond® BRAND SoundBreak® XP® Gypsum Board with Sporgard™ is a Type X board with tapered edges. It is useful for single layer applications or as part of multi-layered wall assemblies, and is a good choice when sound buffering is needed.

This board is available in 5/8" or 1/2" with the following features:

- An acoustically enhanced core that is also high density fire resistant
- 100% recycled PURPLE® paper on both sides
- A mold, moisture and mildew resistant design
- Constrained layer damping with viscoelastic damping polymer
- Vertical board joints that do not require acoustical sealing
- Resistance to surface abuse and indentation

SoundBreak XP Gypsum Board is installed just like traditional gypsum board and can also be scored and snapped. It is approved for both wall and ceiling use.

Project Spotlight: Clarion Psychiatric Center Expansion

The Clarion Psychiatric Center (CPC) in Monroe Township is expanding from a 76-bed facility to a 112-bed facility, and is also adding a conference center for mental health trainings. Upon completion, the facility will add 72 new jobs and bring the total staff to 222 employees. The larger building will also help address the increased demand for mental health services in Clarion and surrounding counties.

The expansion is expected to be completed by fall of 2018 with a total cost of $12 million. Ohio Valley Drywall Supply is providing National Gypsum High Impact Drywall and Georgia Pacific DENS Element Sheathing for the project.
